ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Device (100) for automatically detecting various characteristics of an ophthalmic lens (10), the device includes a support (110) adapted to receive the lens. The support is displaceable in translation along two mutually perpendicular axes, and include elements for forming a positioning image on first acquisition and analysis elements.